

FRIDAY.....JANUARY 21

Outlook for Beef.

Hon. Lem Allen said to a S. F. Call reporter:

Beef steers are now worth in Nevada from 64 to 64 cents a pound net," said Mr. Allen last night, "and beef cows from 5 to 5 1/2 cents. This is a good solid raise. For the last five years the average price of beef steers there has been about five cents.

"Late in December there came a raise, and it has been staying right with us. Not only have cattle gone up, but sheep have also. Mutton, which six weeks ago was selling for $1 75 a head, is now bringing from $3 to $3 50 a head.

"The reason for all this is the scarcity. In Nevada there has been a great thinning out of livestock. It began in August and September, when eastern buyers came in and bought up cattle to feed. There was an enormous corn crop in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois, and it was to eat this corn that the cattle were bought up.

"The Truckee Valley, which is from twelve to thirteen miles long, and which usually has at this time of the year from 11,000 to 16,000 feed cattle now hasn't more 3,500 or 4,000. This valley runs from the vicinity of Reno toward Carson, and is in Washoe county.

"Mason Valley has about 4,000 cattle now being fattened, which is about as many as usual. Hay has been cheap. Alfalfa was sold for awhile as low as $2 a ton.

"In the Lovelock Valley or Humboldt Sink, there are about 3,000 head. Unusually at this time of the year there are from 5,000 to 7,000.

Since the above interview beef has climbed another notch.

The California Assembly.

Sacramento, Jan. 21.—The Assembly chamber was crowded this morning in anticipation of a scene regarding Chief Clerk Duckworth, whose resignation was demanded by the Republican caucus on the ground that he appointed a large number of unnecessary attaches. Duckworth refused to resign on the advice of the Populists and Democrats, with some Republican friends. The resolution of Melick, a Republican, that all attaches who had received pay without service be forced to return the money, was referred. The whole question of the organization of the Assembly was then referred to a committee of five. This is considered a victory for Duckworth.

NEVADA LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

Met at 11 a. m. President McCone in the chair.

Roll call. All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain and reading of the Journal.

S. B. No. 3, by Lord—Relief of Nevada National Guard. Appropriates $11,904.60 for salary of Adjutant General and army rent for the various companies, etc., for the years 1895 and '96. Referred to Military and Indian Affairs.

Summerfield of Washoe said this was an important bill, and upon his motion its consideration was made a special order for one week from today at 11:30 a. m.

S. B. No. 49, vetoed by Governor Jones was now taken up. Provides for levy of tax upon incomes and other matters thereto.

Summerfield of Washoe spoke at considerable length against the veto. This bill was thoroughly discussed at the last session and passed by a large majority. He thought now as he did then that it was necessary for the decreased and insufficient revenue of the State. It taxes those best able to pay, and is no burden upon small property holders.

Comins spoke to a similar effect. This law would reach the large property holders, who have avoided paying their just share in the support of the State Government.

Denton and Ernst also spoke, and the bill passed over the veto of the Governor by a vote of 13 to 2.

S. B. 57, concerning official bonds and sureties thereon, vetoed by Governor Jones, was taken up and discussed, and the veto unanimously sustained.

At 12 a recess was taken until 2 p. m.

There was no afternoon session of the Senate, the body having adjourned to listen to Prof. Stubbs in the Assembly.

President J. B. Stubbs of the State University addressed a joint convention of the Senate and Assembly in the Assembly Chamber as per resolution of the previous day. A large crowd particularly ladies, was present. Senator Cumins was the unanimous choice for Chairman and introduced the speaker. Mr. Stubbs interspersed his remarks with bright exemplification of the subject which always characterizes his speeches. His remarks were confined to University matters. He said that the government appropriated in the year 1892 $20,000 for faculty and instruction only, this appropriation was to increase $1,000 each year until it reached the maximum limit of $25,000. It has to rely solely upon this and whatever the legislature may give them for improvements etc. During the past two years losses by fire have eaten into the funds and they were insufficient together with the insurance recovered to entirely replace that which was destroyed.

Two dormitories, one for boys and one for girls have been built; the first costing $28,000 and the latter expecting the appropriation of $10,000 by nearly $2,000 in order to accommodate an unforeseen increase in the number of applications.

Deficiencies in other departments have arisen to the amount of $12,000 which must be made good by a relief bill. Also $2,000 is required to finish the gymnasium and $10,000 for the completion of the mechanical building, dormitory etc. In all $38,000 is required. In closing he said:

"If these demands are acceded to, the University will be fully equipped for 25 years with accommodations for 400 students and under the best conditions the number will not exceed this."

The speech lasted 1 hour and 30 minutes and at its conclusion the speaker was heartily applauded.

Significant Figures.

The more one looks into the returns of the last election, the more is one convinced either that Superintendent of the Census Porter did not do his duty in 1890, or that the agents of Mark Hanna overdid theirs in 1896. Here are some more figures which will cause a "powerful heap o' thinking."

The Philadelphia American publishes the statistics of the eleventh census and comments as follows:

These figures indicate that there has been a phenomenal increase of population during the past six months in the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky and West Virginia, States that had to be carried to insure Mr. McKinley's election, a phenomenal growth that was not shared by the other States of the Union. It will be noticed that in 1890 the total number of males over 21 years of age in Ohio was 1,016,464. This number included all of those unnaturalized citizens not entitled to vote, though of voting age. In 1896, 1,014,548 votes were counted. In Indiana 45,000 more votes were counted in 1896 than there were men of voting age, not voters, in 1890. In Illinois 12,000 more votes were counted than there were men of voting age, including all unnaturalized foreigners, in 1890. In Iowa there were several hundred more voters counted in 1896 than there were men of voting age in 1890; in Kentucky 5000 less, and in West Virginia 18,000 more.

None of the other States show such a startling and unaccountable increase of voters. In Michigan the fight was as hot as in Indiana. In Michigan the men of voting age entitled to register are at least proportionately as numerous as in Indiana. There is no reason to suppose Indiana has grown faster in population than Michigan. Yet Indiana counted 45,000 more votes than there were men of voting age in 1890. Michigan voted 75,000 within the number of men of voting age given in the census of 1890. The reader can analyze other States for himself. The results are startling.

Either the census taken in 1890 is unreliable or the vote counted in 1896 is a fraud. An investigation into the reliability of the Eleventh Census might be in order.

Verily, the more one looks into the official returns of the six States that McKinley needed so badly in order to ensure his election, the more does it dawn upon him that either one of two things must be true:

1—The Census of 1890 was shamefully inadequate.

2—Wm. McKinley was not fairly elected President of the United States.
